From The Chairman's Pen

I feel very proud to release the first monthly newsletter "The Genius Times". I am very thankful to our ever supporting team. I really congratulate the newsletter committee for taking this initiative, and I would also appreciate students as well as our parents' involvement in this endeavor. The growth of the country lies in its youth and hence we are strengthening the youth in our own ways, the gist of which is reflected in this newsletter.
Happy reading to you all !!! - Mr. D.V. Mehta

Editorial Column

We need a revolution in the education system in India

Education builds the man so it builds the nation. Today we claim to be the biggest human resources supplier for the world, but are we concerned what quality of human capital we are building and for whose needs? We supply bureaucrats to the government, software engineers to the IT companies around the world, highly paid managers to the multinationals, we supply engineers and science graduates as researchers to the foreign universities. What capital are we building for ourselves?

India aspires to be powerful, it wants to play a role in the international community, for that to happen, its economy has to grow multifold and for that to happen, it requires a huge force of entrepreneurs who could transform it into a nation which produces, from the one which only consumes. India needs a huge force of innovators who could make it self reliant in all kinds of sciences and technologies. India needs artists who could make its culture the most popular in the world. A culture which is not only saleable itself but also helps in selling India's products across the world. In a nutshell, India needs Henry Fords, Bill Gateses, Thomas Alva Edisons and Michael Jacksons born and educated in India.

One may say we had few. Yes, we had. M. S. Swaminathan who made India self reliant in food grains, Dhuru Bhai Ambani who proved a common man can become a billionaire, Dr. Varghese Kurien who is the father of Amul milk movement, Dr. A. P. J. Abdul Kalam who dared to build missiles for India, Pundit Ravishankar who is the ambassador of the Indian music to the world. Such people though in small numbers, were always there. But they are not the products of this education system. This system did not teach them how to become innovators or entrepreneurs or artists. Had it done so, they would have been millions in numbers. These people were inspired themselves. To some of them, their education may have given the technical know-how (though it is hardly conceivable), but not the dream or the inspiration needed. It is the education which should inspire one to become something one really wants to. Education should make you free, should make you experiment and it should make you ask questions.

Ultimately, it should make you realize what you are. Youngsters in India, do not have the freedom of selecting their career, it is said. They are forced to become engineers, doctors, MBA's and IAS officers, it is said. Yes, agree. But that is not the problem. The problem is, youngsters in India do not have the vision to think beyond. Neither their parents, nor their grandparents had that vision. This is where the root of the problem is. Generations have gone through a system which sucks. Now the beauty is even the law-makers and educators of today's India are products of that age old system. That is why no less than a revolution is needed in the education system in India. - Ms. Dimple Mehta

Introduction

Marching on the path of accomplishments and trials and setting new trends, we are here with the first issue of our school's monthly newsletter "The Genius Times". With this, school moves one step forward to touch new heights of success. In this refined age of technology, current trends in contemporary life styles have created the need for everyone to be smart, independent, goal oriented, resourceful and with extraordinary skills to outshine others in this progressive world. Matching steps with the changing times, our school caters conducive environment to our budding talent to grow as a complete personality. This newsletter yields a platform to the young and inquisitive minds to unfold their skills and ideas and also reflects the multifaceted activities of the school.

In this newsletter, not only students and staff members but parents also can show their creativity by giving articles, stories, inspiring experiences of life, etc. In this manner students, parents and staff members would get the exposure in our Genius Group of Schools. Topic for the article will be given in advance in newsletter for the next month so as to give enough time for preparation. It should carry min.150 to max. 200 words. Students, parents and teachers of Genius School shall submit their article to Dhara Mam (Administrative Head) at Genius School and students, parents and teachers of Jay International School shall submit their article to Kiran Mam (Administrative Head) at Jay International School on 20th of every month between 10:00 a.m. to 12:00 noon. After the given deadline, in no circumstances anything will be accepted. If the school observes holiday due to any public holiday or if it is a Sunday then the articles would be collected latest on 19th of that particular month. Article should be in English language only. We definitely appreciate your efforts but it is not a guarantee that your article will be published. All the articles shall undergo the screening by the committee members. Best article will be placed in our newsletter. The newsletter committee will have the sole responsibility to select the best article among all the articles.

You will find variety of information in our newsletter which will not only invite articles, paintings, stories but also involve club corner, sports corner, corner for acknowledgement of upcoming events, achievement corner, co-curricular activities corner, opinion poll, parents corner, etc.

The Book Corner "The Seven Habits of Highly Effective People" - By Stephen R. Covey

In the seven habits of highly effective people, author Stephen R. Covey presents a holistic, integrated, principle centered approach for solving personal and professional problems. With penetrating insights and pointed anecdotes, Covey reveals a step by step pathway for living with fairness, integrity, honesty and human dignity. Principles that give us the security to adapt to change, and the wisdom and power to take advantage of the opportunities that change creates.

Stephen Covey has written a remarkable book about the human condition, so elegantly by understanding our embedded concerns which are useful for our organisational and personal lives. His book teaches the readers with power, conviction and feeling. Both the content and the methodology of these principles form a solid foundation for effective communication.

The Seven Habits are keys to success for people in all the walks of life. It is very thought provoking. The principles discussed here are universal and can be applied to every aspect of life. These principles, however, are like an opera. They cannot simply be performed, they must be rehearsed!

This book contains the kind of penetrating truth about human nature that is usually found only in fiction. At the end, you will feel not only that you know Covey, but also that he knows YOU. And we find this book to be a significant addition to our library. - Ms. Janki Ranpara
